MANAGING HALLOWEEN HYSTERIA IN THE GAY GHETTO

by Dennis McMillan
aka Sister Dana Van Iquity of the Sisters of Perpetual Indulgence

This Halloween the controversial, nonprofit charitable organization of the Sisters of Perpetual Indulgence, Inc. intends to accomplish two goals--managing the otherwise unmanageable crowd of Castro Street participants and gawkers while simultaneously raising funds for a community which is experiencing charity drive burn-out. In cooperation with city officials, the Sisters will cordon off the "gay ghetto" and ask for a dollar donation from each All Soul's Day celebrant to enter the several-block radius neighborhood which has traditionally become one of the largest annual attractions in San Francisco.

Instead of having random appearances of costumed revelers milling among the crowd, the city will provide several flat-bed trucks serving as a runway and make-shift stage where people can display their creative outfits and give elaborate drag shows.

Last year the over 250,000 people crowding the area caused a phenomenon known as human gridlock--too many people crammed into too little space. The Sisters, in conjunction with a large staff of volunteers from Community United Against Violence, will therefore act as hostesses at a giant, organized block party, turning the usual fun-raising into fund-raising. They were encouraged to do this by results of their successful, spontaneous collection of money shortly after the disastrous 7.0 earthquake of October 17, donating several thousand dollars to the Earthquake Relief Fund.

The city is hoping to set a similar tenor for this year's event, that of a community gathering with the common goal of coping with the increasing costs associated with AIDS care and the conversely decreasing funds available for social service. In addition there is the intention of discouraging typical anti-gay violence experienced on this wild night of pranks and mischief by channeling potentially destructive energy into powerful, unified benevolence.

Proceeds from the event will be divided between three charities; the HIV Life Center (a building to provide a permanent home for Names Project Quilt and a clearinghouse which will handle all necessary services a patient requires from the point of seropositive diagnosis on through all the stages of AIDS). Supervisor Harry Britt's early prevention program to help check the progress of HIV infection, and the Community United Against Violence (directed at both domestic and homophobic violence).

HERE'S TO THE LADIES WHO LUNCH

Style. What is it? Who has it? Will it induce twenty year old babes to want my bod? And, of course, how much does it cost?

These, and other important questions, will not be answered by this article. Besides, if you still use words like 'babes' and 'bod', it doesn't matter anyway. I, on the other hand, am desperately seeking the answer to that age old philosophical quandary: What does 'having style' REALLY mean? And why is it so frequently associated with being gay? Come to think of it, what exactly constitutes 'GAY'? Are gay women gay? Are lesbians gay? Is, God forbid, Ed Koch, gay? Can you be honestly and truly gay if you can't dance? If you don't know what 'house music' is? If you don't blow dry your hair? What if you consider yourself a lady...and you're a female? What if you consider yourself a lady...and you're not even a woman? Oh! well, I guess I'll leave what gay is for another article. For now, I'll concentrate on my search for style.

I thought a good place to start my search would be at a garden party. AFter all, the mere term 'garden party' conjures up images of graciousness, charm and old world manners. BEsides, it was the only invitation I've received to ANYTHING in the past four years. Popularity isn't exactly my strong suit. So I got our my Cross pen, blew the dust off an old box of Crane stationary, and sent in my RSVP to what promised to be the 'social fete' of the season. I figured if I were searching for style, I'd probably have to look no further than the 'social fete' of the season. The fact that the theme was 'Womym Celebrating Wimmin' threw me off a bit. But, what the hell, I was a woman. Opps, sorry. I mean womyn...

My grandmother use to say that a lady ALWAYS knew the difference between true style and what is merely 'a fashionable life'. Armed with this information, I went off to the much touted garden party. Well, it wasn't really a party, the hostess informed me; it was a 'charitable event' (which is, of course, distinguished from a mere party by the presence of all of the 'right' people). I began to sense I might be in a teensy bit of trouble.

Certainly those who attended were to be commended. I know that because I heard them commending themselves throughout the day. The moneyed 'gayeratti' have the art of back-patting down pat. Since most of them fancy themselves 'artistes', I guess it isn't surprising that they also have effectively mastered the affectations so intrinsic to the art of 'posing'. And to give them credit, they wore it well. So well, in fact, they wore it out.

Practically everybody there knew each other, or at least knew of each other. This, no doubt, was accomplished through the offices of the REAL social arbitrar of our generation; the 'ultra chic, ultra svelte, ultra fashionable 'local' hair stylist; the man, who with scissors and blow dryer, can magically transform even the most 'macho' of women into 'queen for a day'. There were three or four men there. I figured they were either local hairdressers or 'tokens'.

I left early. Just as they were announcing the appearance of the last performer, a woman idolized by these post feminist, formerly-liberal-now-progressive, financially successful 'artistes'. Personally, I find her offensive, condescending, irrelevant and a latent heterosexual worshipper. In other words, she is the epitomy of her fans. With that thought in mind, I dejectedly left the socially prominent 'event' of the season. I glanced back towards the fashionable 'artistes', cigarette holders waving in the late afternoon sun, plastic glasses of domestic champagne sparkling brightly, comfortable shoe prints dotting the manicured landscape, and I realized that my quest was destined to continue. And when I would receive another invitation to something, God, if there is one, only knew.

An older gentleman was walking out at the same time I was. He didn't have a car, and it was quite far to the nearest bus stop. I gave him a ride home, which turned out to be a boarding house in one of the poorer districts of the city. He invited me in for a cup of tea, apologizing for the smallness of his room. He graciously shared some imported biscuits with me, despite the fact that there were only a few left. He insisted on seeing me out. As I was driving away, he tipped his well worn (but exceedingly cared-for) Panama hat.

If the 'herstory' of the socially successful garden party 'event' is ever written, it might be said that it was fashionable. But the gentleman in the Panama hat; Oh, that man had style!.

In Switzerland there is a ski slope. On a snowy day, the sky, the air and the ground are all white, and the only way you can see the way downhill is by following orange markers that are perched atop poles which are stuck into the snow. On either side of the slope there are cliffs. If you should ignore the markers, your descent would be swift -300-400 feet straight down where you would certainly meet a few scraggy rocks, and your maker, face to face. If this slope were in America, it would most likely be closed so that the family of the first person to wander over the side would not sue and eventually own the whole mountain. But this wouldn't occur to those brave souls skiing this trail in Europe. It's very clear to the Europeans partaking of their recreation that it is THEIR OWN RESPONSIBILITY to follow the markers and THEIR OWN RESPONSIBILITY to avoid certain death at the bottom of the ravine. In America, we don't want to take responsibility for our actions and our choices. Here, we sue and blame someone else for our misfortune.

At the Leaning Tower of Pisa, the children and adults who ascent the steps of this historic monument are RESPONSIBLE for their own safety - there are no guardrails to keep them from falling to a rough finish at its base. In America, the building would either be closed, or some unattractive set of bars would be installed to save Americans from themselves. Once again, Americans don't want to take responsibility for their own safety. All a person has to do is slip and fall outside a store or a private residence and the owners of that particular real estate are sued for damages. Don't get me wrong. I firmly believe that if a person is injured due to some kind of negligence on the part of someone else, then the person responsible should be sued. But in the overwhelming majority of cases, a person who is injured could have taken RESPONSIBILITY upon themselves and avoided the situation completely. A little foresight and intelligence could go a long way.

But we, here in America, are suffering from the disease of IRRESPONSIBILITY. We send our young people and billions of dollars to a sun-baked country on the other side of the world to "protect" a fuel that we should not be relying upon in the first place. We blame Iraq for our own IRRESPONSIBILITY. If we had been responsible in the first place and had followed the lead of a President with more foresight than rhetoric (Jimmy Carter), we would not now be reliant upon oil from a part of the world that we have pillaged and which has many grievances against us as a nation. We stand in the full glow of ignorance of our own government's machinations towards the rest of the world and point our fingers accusingly at others and blame them for our woes. WAKE UP AMERICA!! We are responsible for our present situation and no amount of bloodshed and hate-mongering toward the Arabs is going to change that simple fact or bring about some kind of peace and understanding to that part of the world or our own hearts. WE as separate but connected entities sharing one world must take RESPONSIBILITY for each other and every action that we, as autonomous citizens, undertake. Every action has a reaction- remember that? And we cannot cover our heads and hide when the sequence of events that we are parts of gets out of control. We must take RESPONSIBILITY for ourselves and for our deeds.

The problem is, we have few role models for our children to learn from regarding this issue. Blacks want to blame whites, gays want to blame straights, Jews want to blame Nazi's, the poor want to blame the lrich, the Irish want to blame the English- the list is endless. The fact of the matter is, no one is going to be raised up from their particular station in life unless they do the pulling themselves, and the only way that is going to happen is if we take RESPONSIBILITY for ourselves. Our greatest role model here in America, our illustrious past President (Reagan), wouldn't stand up and take responsibility for his own actions. So what is the message we're sending to our youth? What is the message that Louis Farrakhan is sending black youth when he wants to be given a homeland in Africa instead of teaching young black kids how to take RESPONSIBILITY for themselves and to live with the diversity that is America? What is the message that Jesse Helms is sending when he wants to remove our precious right to take the RESPONSIBILITY for our own moral and aesthetic beliefs? It's no wonder that taking RESPONSIBILITY is on the wane in America; our very leaders are attempting to deny each and every one of us the capacity for doing so. But the only way that this is going to change in any functional and practical way is for every citizen to take the RESPONSIBILITY upon themselves and to go out and DO something to regain our cultural integrity. Let your voice be heard in all of its accountability. Don't let patting yourself on the back when you do good suffice. Try taking responsibility for the bad that happens in your life (and community) and revel in the full flowering of your personal power as an aware and productive citizen of the planet.

THE WIND AND I

"Your time is up,".Breathes the wind.
"Your love is past, Its course at end,

"What know you" say I," of this?
You've not tasted mortal bliss.
You know naught of strong embrace,
hungering lips upon your face.
Across the earth you skip and leap,
Never touching what is deep."

"I see all," the wind hisses,
"You fools and your kisses."
Here was I, spawned with time.
Here I'll be, past this rhyme.
I was circling, as you lay huddled,
Outside his arms when you cuddled.
But now he's gone, his soul departed,
Happiness, joy, "with him was carted."

I reply;
"By my words stand I will,
Knowledge of love, you have nil.
About love and life you swirl
and rage,
Partaking not, and thus, no sage.
Love stops not with flesh and bone
Nor, by yourself leaves you alone.
My mate is gone and here am I,
But next to him again I'll lie
So, off you go to howland wail,
Your attempts on me to no avail.
Exist you will, perhaps forever,
without love means living never.

Well my dear readers, IIIMMM Back! As you know, I was away last month on a well-earned vacation, and a beautiful vacation it was.

To give you a mini-rundown, I attended "The Gay Games-90" in Vancouver, Canada, and the Goodwill Games in Seattle and The Shakespeare's Festival in Ashland, Oregon, then it was off to the east coast (Philadelphia, PA) to visit my family. All in all, I had a beautiful vacation. Thanks for asking. The highlight of my vacation, was the "Gay Games 90" in Vancouver. It was eight days of uninterrupted sportsmanship. Harmony, Love and just good old fashion fellowship. I was particularly proud of Sacramento. Participants returned with over one hundred and six medals. At one designated bars you will be able to meet these athletes, get acquainted with them and see their medals, team Sacramento, "WE LOVE YOU" and THANKS! For your information Gay Games-94 will be held in New York City. Ashland's Shakespeares Festival was also one of the highlights of my vacation. Saw, Merry Wives of Windsor, Comedy of Errors, Henry the 5th, Peer Gynt, The SEcond Man. All were Beautifully performed. Then off to Philadelphia (City of Brotherly Shove, just kidding) to visit family. Except for the weather (hot and humid) all was well with family. Had such a good time on my vacation that I missed my deadline for my article. Sorry about that. This article (October), as you may not know, is our one hundredth issue. I have missed one issue (last month) not a bad record, I must say. Writing my column has been fun, and you have been a wonderful audience, sorry I missed The Duke and Duchess Ball. Understand it went very well. Thanks to "Large Marge" and "Patrick" for a job well done. Congratulation to the new monarchs, Racine and Gene. May you reign in PEACE. I was back in time for the "infamous Toilet Ball" talking about your priorities, what a fun night. It was witty, light-hearted, and just plain fun. We could use a little more of that. Dana and Opal, Thanks: it was a fun night. Speaking of fun times, The Rainbow Festival gets bigger and better every year. However, I would like to see the entire community involved. A lot of work goes into this festival, this should be an annual highlight of our gay community, bigger and better every year. Remember, this is a fundraising event, mainly for PWA's, a worthwhile charity. This year I am happy to announce that the Rainbow Festival raised over $7,500. Terry Sidee, you are to be commended for all the tireless effort that you put into this fund raising event. And for everyone else who was involved to make this a successful happening. Next y ear I would like to see more ethnic food vendors. Maybe next y ear I will dig up my Grandmothers old recipe on fried grits and fish head stew. Just kidding!!!!! Happy anniversary to the Lambda Community Center. Keep up the good works, we need you in our community. Lakish (Merc) I hope you had a nice vacation up in the old northwest. I only hope you left Seattle and Victoria, Canada in tact. Turn about is fairplay, I left it nice for you. LIttle tidbits----this is for John M. Gratitude is a fruit of great cultivation; you do not find among gross people. Aunt R----- first the man takes a drink; then the drink takes a drink; then the drink takes the man. Bob S---remember charity begins at home, but should not end there. John M--- a home-made friend wears longer than one you buy in the market. Remember that John. O.K.? Enough sermonizing. October 11, is "coming out day". If it feels right for you, do it!! Remember, it's your decision to make, no one else, good luck! Halloween is coming up, every bar has some kind of event planned, check with your favorite bars for these events, time and schedules. An apology I think is due from me, pertaining to the Renaissance Faire. I was not back in time from my vacation to properly organize it,

A Theater Review:

A few weeks ago, I had the pleasure of reviewing a new musical drama entitled: " A Tribute To The Memory of You", an emotion-charged musical about a gay man's life. Done in three acts. Right off the top, it's a wonderful piece of work, book lyrics, and music all created by one man, Denny Hamann. In his mid-forties now, fulfilled a teen age dream of writing and composing music. He was challenged by Jim Morningstar, a Milwaukee psychologist, to: "go deep within yourself and discover your highest good, bring forth, and share it with the world", this odyssey to live that dream has created, "Tribute" and a creation it is! It had this reviewer crying, laughing, and sometime very angry. I like enjoy any play that can do that to me. Works on every emotion. "Tribute" is the story of a young man named, "Biff", journey through life realization of his attraction to other men. The process of coming out to a staunch fundamentalist family. His involvement with his first love encounter. There are over 29 songs put to exhilarating music beautifully performed by an excellent pianist, Andrew Carhart, also, the beautiful voices of the Sacramento Men's Chorus. The lyrics and the music are married in perfect harmony. The entire cast all have beautiful voices. Especially, Biff, who is on stage in every scene. He is a beautiful scene standing alone. Real pleasing to the eyes. In fact all the actors deserve credit. This musical drama is in good hands. One of the characters named, "Ms Righteous" has a very funny bit, and perfectly casted. This is a musical drama of the nineties, and a must see. We are privileged here in Sacramento to see it first before it is taken on the road. That is exactly what the author is planning on doing. Mr. Haman stated that he would transport the troupe in his 36 ft. motorhome to bring "A Tribute To The Memory Of You" to communities within a couple days drive from Sacramento. In the future, if you are interested in a thespian happening and always fantasized as being on the stage performing before a live audience, this is your chance. Auditions for the above will be announced at a later date. The main thing is...see the play! I am assured you will enjoy it. My only criticism is, it's a wee bit long, three acts and two intermissions. Maybe the director could tighten it a little. I think that another thing that will help is, faster and shorter scene changes. Try doing it in a complete blackout, that way the audience does not witness the clumsy scene changes. Note: I definitely liked the ending. The song, "Remember A Friend" and "You Have Found A Friend", very moving. This is when the audience is encouraged to remember a friend or a loved one who has died from Aids; call out his or her name to the chorus. It's like the living quilt on stage, and the song relates. You do meet new friends. " A Tribute To The memory Of You", will play at the Guild theater, located at 2830 35th st for three weeks. From October 5th through October 21st. Performance will be held Friday and Saturday evenings at 7:30 and Sunday matinees at 2:00 P.M.. Ticket prices are $7.00. Note: Sunday matinees are free to people with Aids. For more information call 331-3307 portion of the proceeds will benefit PWA's. The above is a must see!!! Four and a half stars in my book. Good luck with the show Denny. Happy Anniversary to MCC. Have a nice safe Halloween. Love ya!
